Are you considering quartz countertops?

What is quartz?

Quartz is an engineered stone containing 90-94% ground quartz particles and 6-10% polymer resins and pigments combined to produce an extremely durable surface that looks like natural stone.

Why quartz?

Durability
Quartz is the most durable countertop material available.

Affordability
Quartz is the most affordable stone countertop option.

Non-porous
Quartz is non-porous. This makes it more resistant to stains than natural stone. Its moisture resistance makes it less of a bacteria magnet.

Easy maintenance
Unlike natural stone, quartz requires no special sealant or sealant upkeep. The surface is both scratch- and heat-resistant.

Less likely to crack
Resists cracking to a greater degree than most natural stone countertops.

SHELLY'S TIPS
Countertop Overhang

- Standard countertop overhang for the fronts of base cabinets is 1 1/2 inches
- If your island is used only for prep and storage, standard overhang is 1 inch
- Island overhang can support 12 inches without the support of legs or brackets — providing sufficient space for people seated at the island to fit their knees comfortably underneath
